History

The Kalleshwara Temple is located at Hulikal village in Turuvekere taluk, Tumakuru district. It is a moderate sized Hoysala temple. It consists of a garbhagriha, an open vestibule, a navaranga of four pillars and a small porch, borne on bell-shaped pillars. The outer walls are ornamented with pilasters. The parapet is also intact. The corners of its stone towers are surmounted by brick and mortar nandis. The navaranga has deep domical ceilings with padma decoration. The central ceiling, however, is raised on two sets of intersecting squares. On the back wall of the navaranga on either side of the doorway is a towered niche, now one occupied by an image of Ganapati and another by a Bhairava. In the southwest corner of the navaranga stands a mutilated image of Shanmukha riding on a peacock..
