History

The Hanging Bridge is located at Srirangapatna town in Srirangapatna taluk, Mandya District. Presently the bridge is completely destroyed, only sidewalls of the hanging bridge are intact. It is said that, there was a swinging arch on this spot. It was constructed by Tipu Sultan and designed by a French Engineer De Haviland. This was a sample bridge, which was later planned to build a similar one over the Cauvery river. Till 1936, it was intact. When people stood on the keystone, it used to jerk 2 – 3 inches. Suddenly on 2nd July 1936, it collapsed. However, it was an example of the technology of that day.
