History

The Chennigaraya Temple also known as Channakeshava Temple is located at Kaidala village in Tumkur taluk, Tumakuru district and it was built by Gule Bachi, a chieftain of the Hoysala King Narasimha I in 1150 AD which was sculpted by Amarashilpi Jakanachari.

The temple is built in Dravidian style around 1151 AD with main dwara (Gate/entry) facing west, walls of the temple enclose the temple like a fort and in walls, we can find some couple sculpture people say it is Jakanachari's parents.

Amarashilpi Jakanachari is born in this village called kaidala, In earlier days Kaidala is called Kridapura. temple, is said to be a fusion of the Hoysala, Dravidian and Vijayanagara styles of architecture. The complete temple complex has a tall fort-like wall or Prakara around it. The Mahadwara is a three-tiered massive structure with beautiful carvings and the large doorway is flanked by pillars with beautifully carved relief works of nubile dancing girls, sages, gods and goddesses
