History

This east-facing temple consists of a garbhagraha, antarala and sabhamandapa. In the garbhagraha is a Sivalinga. The doorframe of the garbhagraha is tri-shakha. There are four freestanding pillars in the sabhamandapa. Inside the sabhamandapa are devakosthas. The temple has a kapotabandha adhithana. The exterior of the temple is decorated with Bhadra – Salilantara. The superstructure of the temple is of dvitala vimana. The round stupi, partly broken, is lying on the ground. The square serrated sikhara, however is partly ruined. This apparently is contemporaneous with the temple. A stair at the east leads to the water sheet below and its flanks show a niche on its inner face.
