History

The Madhavaraya Temple is located at Belur village in Nagamangala taluk, Mandya District. Madhwaraya is a trikuta temple, built on a platform. It consists of three shrines, one on the west in star shaped plan, while the other two are square in plan. The temple is a non-ornate type. Its outer walls have no representation of sculptures, but the regular Kambha, Kuta and Koshta panjaras. In the plan girbharihas are connected to the common Navaranga, and Mukhamantapa. There are lots of later additions to the temple. The shikhara mukhamantapa, prakara and Gopuras were built possibly during the Vijayanagar period. Interior of the temple has fine doorways and lathe turned ornate pillars and ceilings. The cult image is Vishnu in Samabhanga posture.
