History

The Mahalingeshwara Temple is located at LingabudiPalya in Mysuru taluk and District. Mahalingeswara temple was built in 1828, after getting the tank Lingambudi excavated to provide water to the inhabitants living in that region. The inspiration for building the temple and the tank(kere) was divinely granted to Queen Lingajammani, after whom the Tank is named. This temple is of very simple architecture with some stucco sculptures in the parapet niches. A large inscription stone giving details about the origin of the temple is embedded on the temple wall, within a decorative stucco frame.
