History

This east facing small temple has a garbhagraha only and in ruins. The antarala and sabhamandapa are completely fallen. In the garbhagraha is a sivalinga. The garbhagraha has two doorframes on east and west. The garbhagraha has simpler tri-shakha doorframe. The garbhagraha has Ratna Shakha type of Jalavatayanas, the left one is damaged. The ceiling of the garbhagraha has Padma. In front of the garbhagraha is a seated Nandi (damaged). On the either side of the garbhagraha doorframe are sculptures of Ganesha and surya are damaged. On the stylistic ground the temple may belongs to 11th and 12th century A. D.
