History

This dvikuta temple faces east. It consists of two garbhagruhas, antarala and Sabhamandapa. The two garbhagruhas contain a Sivalinga each. The doorframe of the antarala is chatuhshakha. On either side of the antarala is jalavatayanas. There are four freestanding pillars in the sabhamandapa. The adhithana is buried in the earth. The exterior of the temple is decorated with Kudya stambha. The super structure of the temple is of dravida vimana. The pillars of the Navaranga have two inscriptions of Yadava Singhana dated 1224 A. D. and record a land grant to the God Svayambhudeva.
