History

The temple comprises three garbhagrahas each with an antarala, a common sabhamandapa and a mukhamandapa. There are four free standing pillars in the sabhamandapa. The ceiling has a deep Bhuvanesvari with Asta-Dikpalas. At the main entrance of the sabhamandapa are two dvarapalas. The mukhamandapa has a kaksasana. The exterior of the kaksasana is decorated with mythological and other themes. The exterior walls of the garbhagraha and sabhamandapa are decorated with richly carved sculptures. Over the main garbhagraha is a renovated Kadambanagar sikhara. There are two inscription slabs kept outside the entrance to the sabhamandapa. One of them dated 1167 speaks of a grant of land from Sindevura to Rameshwara in the days of Bijjala.
